Nervous shock.

An accident due probably to the uncompleted repairs of the mill bridge over Spruce Creek on the Post Road in North Kittery Wednesday afternoon caused the death by drowning of John Crowe and his daughter Miss Mary Crowe, of East Jaffrey, when the car owned and operated by the Rev. Fr. Joseph P. Creeden of Laconia crashed through the railing and toppled into the water of the creek. Mr. Crowe and his daughter were pinned in the rear seat of the car while another, Miss Mary Hurley of Manchester, also a passenger on the rear seat, was thrown clear and escaped with her life. Father Creeden and the Rev. Michael Griffin of Exeter also escaped with their lives although Fr. Griffin was unconscious for some time and physicians worked on him at the Portsmouth Hospital for nearly an hour before he was revived. Father Creeden is suffering from a cut on his left leg and an injury to his back, and all three are suffering from the nervous shock. How they managed to escape instant death as was the case with Mr. Crowe and his daughter is a mystery which none can explain.

Mr. Crowe was nearly eighty years of age and was a retired farmer and business man of East Jaffrey, one of the prominent men in town affairs for many years and one widely known and respected. On Tuesday he was the guest of Superintendent of Schools James N. Pringle and Mrs. Pringle of this city who have known the family for many years. Mr. Crowe was the head of the East Jaffrey school board for a long term and had served his town in many capacities.

Miss Crowe was also prominent in

TAKEN TO CONCORD.

United States Marshal Charles J. O'Neil returned to Concord this noon with Heene D. Colwell, arrested on Wednesday for his failure to register under the war draft.

(By Associated Press)
Gen. Brusiloff's offensive in Galicia is developing into a drive with little or no let-up.

Yesterday in connection with the capture of Hlitz it was announced that Gen. Korniloff's troops had pushed on south of Stanislaw, reached and occupied Kalisk, a city of 8,000 population, seven miles southwest of the Stoka river.

The Austro-German headquarters in this quarter were situated here and Kalusz was strongly defended, but the Russians took it after a fierce engagement.

The German attacks on the Belgian coast ceased with the capture of the small sector east of the Yser.

Neither today or last night's official statement records any further fighting in this region, although artillery duels are in progress.

On the Verdun front the Germans made attacks on both sides of the Meuse. All of the attacks were repulsed as well as those made on the Aisne front.

THANKED FOR 'TRUTH ABOUT SUBMARINE'

In an address made at Chatham a few days ago Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, said in part:

"Ships are being sunk faster than they are being built. We have not found any invention that can take care of the submarines."

In a letter written yesterday to Mr. Roosevelt, Alvin R. Hawley, president of the Aero club of America, said that aircraft and particularly hydroplanes could end the submarine menace. Mr. Hawley's letter in part, to Mr. Roosevelt, follows:

"The Aero club keeps in close touch with happenings in Europe and has come to the same conclusions as those which you so clearly and forcibly express. As private citizens, however, nothing that we can say carries the conviction to the people that your words carry. You are the assistant secretary of the navy and have been so for more than four years. All the information that comes to the United States in regard to naval happenings abroad, goes presumably to you, and you have furthermore the advice and assistance of all the experts in the navy department."

"As you doubtless are aware, some public men, either from timidity or a misapprehension of the intelligence and character of the American people fear to tell them unpleasant truths. For this reason the nation owes you a debt of gratitude for your honest statement. The American people appreciate an official who is not afraid to tell them the truth."

"The fact that the loss in tonnage is increasing from day to day, combined with the fact that the longer it continues the more difficult it will be to send troops to Europe, shows the importance of sending to Europe the most concentrated force we can, because it can be sent in the fewest ships. The force which can be exerted by aeroplanes and torpedoplanes is more concentrated than any other kind of force, and therefore it can be more easily transported across the ocean. Furthermore when it arrives in Europe it can be put to do the thing which is most urgently required—that is, to eliminate the German submarines. This, as you know, it can do not only by attacking the submarine itself, but also by attacking battleships and cruisers, without whose support the submarines would be forced to remain in shallow water."

"Of course you realize that the only reason why the allied small vessels cannot go into the shallow water near the submarine base and attack the submarine there is because the German battleships and cruisers attack them and drive them away. This can best be done by attacking them and sinking them by torpedoplanes, which can fly over the mine fields."

"You have doubtless noticed the statement of Mr. A. H. Pollen, the British naval expert, that Great Britain cannot stand submarine sinkings at the present rate longer than March 1, 1918, and also his statement that it is absolutely necessary for the success of the allies that the United States help Great Britain eliminate the submarine."

"Mr. Hawley closed by saying that there was a great deal in the public press regarding the energetic measures which the War Department is taking, but no account of what the Navy Department is doing, although general opinion seems to be that the Navy Department could do more."

The rent of the tea rooms is donated by Mr. Edward Hawley, the electricity is given by the town of York, cream is furnished by Messrs. Moulton and Littlefield, ice by Mr. Gallagher and flowers by Mr. Langelle and Mr. Boddy. If request is made by telephone a special and very dainty lunch will be served. ## HAPPENINGS AT YORK BEACH

York Beach, Me., July 12.—The past week-end was again a busy time for this popular resort and although many persons returned to their homes Sunday evening, a great many have remained for a longer vacation by the seashore. The automobile traffic was very light during Sunday forenoon, but later in the day the traffic officers certainly had their hands full keeping the streets open and at the same time assisting pedestrians across the highway. There has been considerable talk of straightening the state road at the beach square by continuing along the shore, past the postoffice and then having one way streets each side of the Goldenrod building, owned by E. A. Talley of Manchester. If the matter were attended to it would do away with the necessity of keeping an officer stationed at the corner giving him a chance to guard the whole territory at short sands.

John McCarthy is doing good work at Long Beach in the section where he happened to be on duty. It is such a long stretch that auto drivers are apt to hit a fast clip as soon as they get out of his sight. The wide road is very narrow with hardly room for machines to pass, so that people waiting to and from Short Sands are in constant danger of being run into. A new sidewalk in that section is another improvement that has been talked over but never made a reality.

The Sunday Concerts. It sounds incredulous, yet it is true, that York Beach is to have concerts every Sunday afternoon at the beach square—that is unless some unprogressive person happens to squelch it before the season is over. Anyway the many visitors were treated to two fine concerts last Sunday and although they were not furnished by a regular brass band, they were the next best thing, being furnished by the boys from the dance hall orchestra.

For the past few years there has been considerable talk of erecting a band stand on the corporation park and having a band to play at least once a week but nothing was done about the matter until last Sunday when E. S. McQuestion had his orchestra bring their instruments to the Atlantic house veranda and give two concerts during the afternoon. Young Schwartz who sings at the dance hall sang several catchy songs that met with general approval from the audience. The whole program was well presented and attracted a large crowd of vacationists and automobile tourists.

It made things look as if the beach was awake and gave people a pleasant impression of the place. The business men consider the idea an excellent one and a movement was at once started to hire the boys to play every Sunday during the remainder of the season.

Having broken the Austro-German line in Galicia by their capture of Halicz, the Russian forces are continuing their drive against the enemy from Halicz to Lemberg, the capital of Galicia and have forced them to retire from Stanislaw southward to the Dniester.

After completing the occupation of Halicz, a great strategic point in the Austro-German line of defense the fighting was continued in the front from Halicz to Zolotyn, thirty miles to the south, where the forces under General Korniloff have forced the enemy to retreat and have occupied two more villages beyond the Lominka river.

The Austro-German forces have been separated and are no longer working together at many points of the defense line south and west of Stanislaw the Russians have forced the fighting until they are at the foot hills of the Carpathians.

In the day's fighting the Russians made prisoners 2,000 of the enemy and took thirty big guns and many machine guns, bringing the total for the fighting in the week to 10,000 officers and men, eighty field guns and many machine guns and much war material.

Berlin makes no detailed report of the action merely saying that "the retirement of forces to the southward from Halicz as planned has been accomplished."

In the fighting on the western front the Germans succeeded in gaining, according to their official reports, 600 yards of British trenches in Belgium on a 14,000 yard front, and claim the capture of 1,250 men.

In the interior at Lombardzyde the German attempts to gain were not so successful as British counter attacks threw back the enemy to their original lines. Whether the attacks are another attempt on the part of the Germans to capture Gals or Danzig is not yet determined. The British war office makes no mention of great infantry action in this section.

BURGLAR INVESTS PROCEEDS OF LOOT IN LIBERTY BONDS

Having been a strictly union chief in England, John Sumner became a strictly union burglar when he arrived in this country a few months ago. He refused to rob a house except between the porch-climbers' mauls of six to nine in the evening. Sumner belongs to the porch-climbers' branch of the craft, although he never climbed a porch-pillar in his life. He borrowed a step ladder from next door and this walked easily up the porch roof while the family was at dinner and searched the bedrooms at his leisure.

Sumner was arrested yesterday while prowling about the home of Mrs. E. D. Soule, No. 1301 Glenwood road, Flatbush, New York, and the police had found that he possessed $180 in cash, a bank book showing a balance of $200 and a Liberty Bond for $50, and that he was wearing several diamond rings.

"Yes, I consider the Liberty Bond a very good investment," said the prisoner. "I have invested most of the proceeds of my burglaries in them, not alone because they form a safe investment but to aid the cause of America and dear old England."

Sumner gave to the police a list of the places in Flatbush and Staten Island he said he had robbed and gave them the addresses of two places in Manhattan where he said he had much of the stolen goods stored.

NAVY SHIPBUILDING FACILITIES EXPAND FOR WAR'S NEEDS

Washington, D. C., July 11.—The shipbuilding facilities of the United States navy yards the Secretary of the Navy announced today, are being expanded to provide ways for six war vessels at one time, while thirty-two may be under construction. This number does not include submarines and submarine chasers. In explaining what is being done, Mr. Daniels said:

"Seven of the sixteen vessels could transports, fuel ships, hospital ships, battle ships, two auxiliaries, such as etc., and seven destroyers.

"Should the needs of the nation require battle cruisers instead of battle ships, it would be possible to substitute these on the larger slips for an equal number of battle ships. As much work must be done on vessels before the keels are laid, and after launching, there could be under construction at one time, in the yards at least double the number of vessels for which slips are available. This construction work is in addition to the repair work and rebuilding of the fleet, which must be carried on.

"There are now under construction in government yards three battle ships, four destroyers and a number of submarines, and submarine chasers. In 1912 the shipbuilding facilities of the navy yards consisted of one way for battle ships at New York and one way at Mare Island for auxiliaries.

"At the beginning of the present year the facilities available were:—Boston, one auxiliary; New York, one battle ship; Philadelphia, one auxiliary; Norfolk, one destroyer; Charleston one submarine; Mare Island, one battle ship and one destroyer.

"At Portsmouth, N. H., we now have four ways for submarines, which mean that from six to eight will be under construction at one time. The navy yard at Boston has one way for auxiliaries.

"The navy yard at New York now has a way for large sized battle ships and a second is being built for battle ships. At Philadelphia there will be two ways, one for large battle ships or battle cruisers and another for large battle ships. A third, already built, is used for auxiliary vessels.

"Norfolk has one way for destroyers and will have one for large battle ships. Charleston will have five ways for destroyers.

"The navy yard at Puget Sound will provide a slip for one battle ship, and Mare Island has ways for a large battle ship and for a destroyer.

"The new building plans involve not only the construction of ways but also machine, electrical, structural, forge and pattern shops, in addition to foundries, storerooms, railroad tracks and power plants. We must also secure electrical machinery and tools, as well as employ thousands of skilled and unskilled laborers."

PLANNING INDUSTRY WAR BOARD

Washington, July 11.—The Defense Council's plan for reorganizing its committee system to coordinate the work of purchasing war supplies was submitted to President Wilson. It calls for elimination of most of the council's 150 committees and creation of new industries board of three men directly answerable to the council.

The establishment of a war industries board is expected to still a great deal of criticism directed at members of the council's committee who, it has been charged, pass on government purchases while themselves selling to the Government. The three men most generally mentioned for places on the board are Bernard Baruch, chairman of the council's Committee on Raw Materials, Julius Rosenwald, chairman of the Committee on Supplies, and Frank Scott, chairman of the General Munitions Board. A priority board may be between purchases by the various Government departments.

Consider Steel Prices
To discuss Government war needs in iron and steel and prices of such materials the iron and steel committee of the American Iron and Steel Institute are here for conferences with Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels. The committee headed by Gilbert H. Gary, is composed of executives of the principal steel companies. A meeting of the committee was held in New York yesterday but nothing was forthcoming as to what, if any, understanding was reached in respect to prices for Government supplies. It is said there has been considerable difference of opinion on the subject among manufacturers. An announcement of the committee's departure said the Secretary of War had required the conference.

SLACKER IS ARRESTED FOR U. S. MARSHAL

The first slacker, or alleged slacker, to be arrested in this city, was taken last evening by Patrolman Doherty and he will be held for United States Marshal O'Neil who will come here from Concord for the prisoner this morning. The arrested man is Boone D. Colwell.

At the station he told Captain Burke that he did not know his age and was uncertain as to his birthplace. He said that he might be 21 at his next birthday in January or he may have been 21 last January. Asked where he was born he stated that he didn't know but thought that it was "somewhere in Missouri." Colwell has been working for the Portsmouth Gas Company at the gas house.

Believing that it was odd that an American born youth could not tell the town of his nativity nor his correct age the local officers believe that Marshal O'Neil will "show" the young man from Missouri that the registration act was a real live honest-to-goodness piece of legislation.

"MILE LONG" BRIDGE HAS BEEN CLOSED

Newburyport, Mass., July 11.—The "mile-long" bridge over Hampton river is closed to travel, it having become unsafe for our service, and passengers are being transferred while repairs are being made. The heavy sea during the past four or five days has undermined the piling and caused the southern side near the draw to sag.

Cashman Brothers Co., was sent for yesterday morning to undertake the replacing of the piles and to strengthen the structure and at once the company sent over a force of men with apparatus for doing the work, which will consume several days.

Cars are placed at either end of the bridge and passengers are required to walk across in going to and from Hampton beach and points this side and beyond.

COLDEST DAY OF SUMMER FOR MANY YEARS

Boston, July 11.—Tonight was the coldest summer night in this city for forty-five years, according to the local weather bureau official records. The temperature stood at 57 at 8 o'clock. Bureau officials stated that Boston was the coldest place in the country tonight. Cold and rain are promised by the bureau for tomorrow.

CHINA MAY JOIN ALLIES TO SAVE SELF

Washington, July 11.—China will soon be ready and willing to draw upon her countless hordes of men, to aid in beating Germany.

In fact, oriental diplomats today predicted that she will enter the war with an initial contribution of 500,000 men. She has 20,000,000, physically fit men of military age, with the first 500,000 already equipped, and vast national resources to draw upon further equipment.

The fight between Monarchists and Republicans in China is characterized as only factional trouble, on the basis of which lay a struggle for leadership in formulating the policy toward Germany.

As the Orientals see it, China's participation in the war would mean her salvation, inasmuch as it would train her masses in the ways of battle and make the nation strong to resist what might threaten later—Japanese aggressions.

"After the war, China would be able to assume her place among the powers—a recognized, fighting democracy," said one close to the Chinese embassy today.

Parliament must reassemble before China can take any action looking toward actual war participation. This, it is anticipated, will be accomplished by Sept. 1, with the new President, Peng Kuo-Cheng, in control.

$12.50 AS TAX ON GROWERS OF POTATOES

Boston, July 11.—The food conservation branch of Mayor Curley's safety committee, the names of which are now under investigation by the city council, today established an assessment of $12.50 per lot upon every amateur farmer who is growing potatoes in Franklin Park, and $10 a lot for those who are growing beans.

The food committee leaves with the farmer, however, the alternative of giving the city two-fifths of the crop. There is a difference of opinion as to what the actual cost of the potatoes will be to the farmer. According to figures furnished by Daniel H. Coadley, chairman of the committee, the potatoes would cost $1.25 a bushel, which is no lower than marketmen figure potatoes will be selling for by the time the crop is harvested.

But according to figures furnished by David Potter, assistant supervisor of the park gardens, the potatoes will cost the farmers only 60 cents a bushel. Coadley told the Traveler that they expect to raise 15,000 bushels of potatoes on 120 lots of one-eighth of an acre each. This figures down to a crop of 15.02 bushels per lot. The city, in charging the farmer $12.50 for its expense in conducting the gardens thus puts the price to the farmers at $1.25 a bushel.

A local potato dealer told the Traveler today that potato contractors in Maine are now making contracts to sell potatoes here in 15 bushels lots for $1.25 a bush. If the city, on the other hand, accepts two-fifths of a potato crop in lieu of $12.50 it will be obtaining only 6.61 bushels valued only $3.30. In other words if the farmers elect to compensate the city in potatoes rather than in cash as most of them probably will do, the city would stand to lose the difference between $12.50 and $3.30.

Mr. Porter said, however, that only 30 acres of potatoes are under cultivation and that from 20 to 25 bushels will be raised on each lot. This figures 50 cents a bushel and if the city takes payment in potatoes the value it receives will be only $5, which is $7.50 below the cash compensation.

Coadley also said that 1000 bushels of beans will be raised. Potter declared that 40 acres are under cultivation, that two bushels will be raised on each lot of one-eighth of an acre. Therefore, according to Potter's figures, only 640 bushels of beans will be raised.

All these figures are based on the best possible weather conditions for the crop. It is possible the output will fall short.

DRAFT WILL NOT COME BEFORE NEXT WEEK

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 11.—As only twenty-one states have completed their organizations of their local exemption boards and reported the official numbers of their registration the proposed drawing of numbers for the American war army bill will not come before next week. It was announced tonight by the Provost Marshal General's office, No drawing will be made before the full reports from every state are at the office.

Of the states not already reported it is only in small sections that the work of organization of the exemption boards is not complete and the office believes that everything will be ready early in the week.

By the so-called registration census estimates the draft will call about two thirds of one per cent of the estimated population so that a city of 25,000 will be called upon for 160 men. Although figures have been made for alien enemies in certain sections and the war population estimates are not the true census figures but are based on the registration of 8,657,352, or 9.32 per cent of the estimated population of approximately 103,635,300 persons.

Wife May Claim Exemption

Claims for exemption must not necessarily be made by the man who is called to go before the examining board for the draft but may be made by his wife, a dependent, employer, or other third person who believes that he could be exempted from the draft. It was announced from the provost marshal general's office today. It was also stated that persons drafted if absent from their homes when called need not appear for physical examination in their own district but may be examined by the local board in the district in which they are at the time called.

The war estimated census for several of the states announced today were: Connecticut, 1,719,623; Massachusetts, 2,530,561; Maine, 646,688; New Hampshire, 403,881; New York, 11,147,738; Rhode Island, 573,683; Vermont, 236,436.

FATALITY ON TURNPIKE IN AUTO CRASH

(By Associated Press)

Topsheld, Mass., July 11.—D. H. Woodsman, sixty, chairman of the board of selectmen of Braintree, was killed and five other occupants of the car were injured today on the Newbury turnpike near here, when their car skidded into another auto on the road. The auto crashed into the second car, slewed across the slippery road, ran into an embankment and overturned, pinning the six passengers beneath.

The second auto with its lone passenger, a Mr. Hall of Framingham, remained in the road, and Mr. Hall, with the assistance of other motorists, finally succeeded in releasing the pinned men. The wrecked auto caught fire.

A Highly Encouraging Outlook.

According to a forecast made by the Department of Agriculture this is to be a record year for crops in the United States. From data that is considered reliable it is estimated that the yield of staple crops will exceed that of last year by a billion bushels.

This is a nestimate, to be sure, and it is perhaps too early to chuckle, but it is reassuring to know that the outlook is so exceedingly favorable. Some of the estimated increases are as follows: Corn, 541,000,000 bushels; winter and spring wheat, 38,000,000 bushels; barley, 33,000,000 bushels; oats, 201,000,000 bushels; potatoes, 167,000,000 bushels, with corresponding increases in various other crops, including rye, sweet potatoes, etc.

These are big figures, and if the crops turn out according to present promise the country will have reason to be devoutly thankful, as will its allies in the Old World, whose eyes are on the American fields as never before.

It is certain that a large part of this promised increase is due to the extra efforts on the part of the farmers of the country, prompted by President Wilson's appeal in April and by their own personal knowledge of the situation. They knew the conditions were such that there would be ready markets for all they could raise; and the result was a largely increased acreage of nearly all crops. The potato acreage is said to have been increased 22 1/2 per cent, not counting the war gardens, which promise to add largely to the supply. One New England city estimates that the war gardens in its vicinity will yield 10,000 bushels of potatoes. That is a large quantity, but the number of gardens is large, and in spite of what has been regarded as an unfavorable spring potatoes never looked better at this time of the year, and the same is true of most other crops. The war gardens that have been properly cared for give promise of big returns and the grand total will help very materially to swell the country's food supply.

This is indeed an encouraging outlook. While we cannot be absolutely sure of the crops until they are harvested it is a fact that they are coming along splendidly now, with every promise of large yields all along the line. There is time yet for damage by drought and early frosts, but these, if they come, will hardly be so widespread as to affect the entire country. And this is a big country. It has never known such a thing as a general failure of crops, and it probably never will.

Under the circumstances the thing for all tillers of the soil to do is to stand pat. Keep the hoe in motion, give battle to the insect hordes. All indications are that if this is done the crops and banns of the country will be filled next fall as never before and that the world will be well fed in spite of the most devastating war in its history.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis of Chicago is noted for never doing things by halves when he imposes a sentence, and it is therefore not surprising that a bunch of slackers who evaded registration were sentenced by him the other day to a year and a day in prison at "hard labor." If this sort of thing were a little more common there would be less law breaking and law evasion in this country than there is. There are too many people in the United States who do not believe the law means what it says. And for this they are not altogether to blame.

As potatoes come up from the South down goes the price in the North. The potato barons have had a long and profitable inning, but the time is close at hand when they will be obliged to take an outing. And if the government is successful in its undertaking the outing will be very extended.

Congress has been bestowing a good deal of authority of late, and it seems that Secretary Baker found a way to provide newspaper censorship for a time without its authority. The step was not entirely popular and the probability is that it will not be taken again right away.

It is said the New England peach crop promises to be the largest on record, and the growers are already planning means of distribution which will place the crop in the hands of consumers at very reasonable prices. Success to their efforts.

The fact that a number of members of the Plattsburg camp were injured the other day when a trench which they were digging caved in emphasizes the need of training in this important feature of modern warfare.

It is not yet time for discouragement, yet many people would feel easier if some of these promises of cheap and abundant coal had a little more evidence of substance behind them.

East St. Louis testifies in a disgraceful way to the fact that there is room for more civilization in some parts of this great and glorious country.

From the Exchanges

Or Is It "Gen. Agitation?"

(From the Providence Journal)
It has been said that General Linderoff rather than General Hindenburg is the real military power in Germany. Well, we notice that both of these agitated authorities scurried to Berlin to whisper with the equally agitated Kaiser.

A Joke Legislature

(From the Chicago Evening Post)
The Wisconsin Legislature is a joke. For two months it debated a resolution providing for printing all of the State's expense 50,000 copies of the President's war message; then it voted the resolution down. If the Legislature represented Wisconsin, it would be a disgrace rather than a joke. It doesn't. While it debated, the women of Wisconsin printed 150,000 copies of Woodrow Wilson's great utterance and sent one to every man who registered for the draft.

A Good Fish Story

(From the Philadelphia Telegraph)
Catching tons of fish just to throw them back into the sea is a wasteful business. Yet it has been going on these many years in the great estuaries and shore waters of British Columbia and elsewhere.

"The war and its attendant food shortage will put a stop to such nonsense. Halibut and salmon fishermen are not going to throw overboard any more tons of black cod, red cod and gray cod, for which no profitable market has existed before."

Some friend of humanity has devised a solution into which these fish can be dipped and so preserved, with their full fresh flavor, for as long as two weeks. That means they can be packed without ice in Vancouver and consumed by epicures in Philadelphia.

For the special purpose of conserving and marketing this hitherto lost food product several new plants are being erected at Prince Rupert.

A Welcome Waits Dr. Mann.

(From the Buffalo News)
The Rev. Alexander Mann, rector of Trinity Church, Boston, has been chosen Bishop of Western New York. The Diocesan Council assembled at Rochester invited him by a large plurality.

Dr. Mann's selection will be a popular one with the churches of the diocese.

The new bishop-elect is of the broad minded type that interprets religion as a workable and helpful philosophy of life.

He will come to us—if he accepts the office, which we hope he will—with credentials of the highest quality.

"Earnest, spiritual, but intensely practical," Dr. Mann is among men as one that serves—a shepherd of souls in the truest sense.

Bishop-elect of western New York will welcome him gladly as their new bishop, and to their welcome will be added that of all citizens who took to heart the public's moral and spiritual food.

Canada Sees a Light.

(From the New York Commercial)
The Canadian House of Commons voted for conscription by a large majority, the division being on racial rather than on party lines. Most of the French Canadian members voted against conscription and the Government, while most of the English-speaking opposition members supported the Government. Since the beginning of the year voluntary enlistments in the Canadian army have not been sufficiently numerous to replace the wastage of war, and the Dominion must resort to conscription if its fighting force is to be maintained at anything like its nominal strength. French-Canadians opposed taking an active part in the war from the very beginning, and the vast majority of them are threatening to resist conscription.

Some of the French Canadian leaders talk of secession, but still wish to remain under the British flag. A few talk of annexation to the United States but the majority object to this because if they were part of the United States they would lose the extraordinary guarantees of preservation of language and the equivalent of a state church collecting tithes and enjoying other ecclesiastical privileges which would conflict with the Constitution of the United States.

It is probable that more persons of French-Canadian descent are now living in the United States than in Canada, but French-Canadians in the United States have been swallowed up and have to a large extent lost their identity. French-Canadians have a great aptitude for politics, but those living on our side of the line do not attempt to make a political issue of racial questions. In Canada, by sticking together, the French-Canadians have always exerted more influence than their numbers warranted. In the Canadian Parliament they have at times held the balance of power such as the Irish Nationalists have done in the British House of Commons.

French-Canadians do not wish to fight for France, because they hold that France treated their church unfairly, and thousands of French members of religious orders took refuge in Quebec when their houses in France were closed by the Government. It is impossible to grasp their attitude without bearing this in mind. Several thousand French-Canadians did volunteer and are now fighting in France, where they have given a very good account of themselves. This leads broad-minded English-speaking Canadians to believe that if French-Canadians are drifted and sent to France, they will become as enthusiastic as any other soldiers in the camps of our allies as soon as they get out of touch with home surroundings and realize the broader aspects of this great war. Their opposition to the war and to conscription is purely selfish, but is putting a severe strain upon the Dominion of Canada, which many hope will be alleviated when French-Canadian soldiers come home from the war after having distinguished themselves upon the fields of battle in France.

Let the Indians Fight.

(From the New York Herald)
Independence Day's spectacle of a Blackfoot Indian begging the Secretary of War to permit his people to fight in a body for this country and that for so doing they be rewarded with the boon of citizenship touches the hearts of all who are interested in the welfare of those who can boast that they are the only real unhyphenated Americans. But the request originated, not from rights of priority as inhabitants of the country, but from patriotic desire to serve the country, both as soldiers and citizens.

No greater test as to their qualifications for citizenship can be demanded than that which they volunteer to undergo—the offering of their lives in the defense of the United States against the aggressions of a foreign enemy. If they are permitted to fight many of them undoubtedly never will return to their native land, but all of them now are willing to risk the supreme sacrifice in order that those who survive may become citizens of the country which has their undivided allegiance. Regiments of negroes, whose ancestors were forced to come to America, will fight in France just as gallantly as they fought in Cuba. The War Department will make no mistake, surely, if it accepts regiments of "original Americans," whose patriotism is undoubted and whose military prowess has been proved on many fields.

Courting an Appropriate Uniform

(From the New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin)
The Socialist party in this city met in some kind of a gathering on Sunday, nominated candidates for municipal offices and adopted a platform, the only novel feature of which was a virtual denunciation of the national conscription law as being "nothing less than a transfer to American soil of Prussian militarism." There was an absolute lack of real American names on the ticket adopted and a singular absence of American spirit in the whole proceeding. A fighting spirit was displayed, but it was only directed against the law and Government of the United States.

The chairman of what seems to have been called a "convention," had the name of Sieverman, which is also on the field as that of the candidate for comptroller. In his speech to the assembled delegates, if they were delegates, he said that the candidates and speakers this year who are true to Socialist principles are "bound to court the peril of arrest and imprisonment," but no honest Socialist would "hesitate one moment in preferring prison stripes to uniforms," evidently meaning the uniforms of soldiers and patriots. Prison stripes are really uniforms, and would doubtless be more becoming to the "speakers" referred to if they express the sentiments evidently expected of them.

The leader of this organization, if it is a real organization who has made the candidate for mayor is a lawyer, but there was a pretence of representing the workmen of the country. The head of the American Federation of Labor was vigorously denounced and a ship was cast upon the President of the United States as not representing a real democracy. It may not be a bad thing to have a vote of the city taken as a measure of the support of this kind of doctrine by its people, but any blatant advocacy of a violation or resistance of the conscription law should be treated as a serious offence and decorated with the appropriate uniform.

In The Fog.

(From the Brooklyn Eagle)
Creel "elaborated" the Olives' report. Government will soon be heartily sick of running both war and peace. Official reports are withheld and fiction is substituted for fact. Now we don't know if submarines attacked our vessels of doubt, that runs through Washington's "in force" or not. The Wilmington is covered with mist.

The Fad of Routine

(From the Hartford Courant)
Supposing that you read in your morning newspaper that a ship arrived at "an Atlantic port" on the preceding afternoon, and that the men on the ship reported their opinion that they had sunk a submarine on the way over, and that just after you had finished reading this and other news, the postman arrived with a bundle of fresh London newspapers, sent on as usual from New York. Would you have any difficulty in knowing at what Atlantic port that ship had arrived the day before?

Some routine matters have sense in them—or at least had sense in them at first, under the conditions and circumstances then existing. But to go on with the routine formula when it amounts to nothing, is to emulate the wisdom of the parrot, who says the same things over and over again without the slightest care whether they fit or not.

In time these routine devices which have no sense in them become ridiculous, and there is not much room just now for laughter.

AMERICAN SQUADRON AT MONTEVIDEO

(By Associated Press)

Montevideo, July 12.—The American squadron arrived here at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. It was escorted into port by Uruguayan warships. The squadron was met by high officials who extended an invitation to both officers and men to accept the freedom of the city. Thousands of persons gathered to witness the arrival of the Americans. All the larger commercial houses were closed and the city wore a holiday appearance.

CONCERNS THE EMPEROR AND HIS SUCCESSOR

(By Associated Press)

Berlin, July 12.—An official communication issued in Berlin says that Emperor William states that the political and contemplated changes "inspired by the Reichstag not only concern himself but his successor as they would be permanent. For this reason the Emperor summoned the Crown Prince to be present at the conference.

FIGHT FOR PENNIES

Men Sue Corporations for Trifles.—Those of Small Means Courageously Tackle Big Companies.

Legal processes are so difficult, so costly and uncertain that everyone must admire the man of moderate means who courageously tackles a great company or corporation rather than be imposed upon.

A case in point occurred when a Scottish artisan went for a big tramway company for the return of a half-penny fare. It appears that some rowdy youths were, in the same car in which he was a passenger and that the company ran the car off its usual route in order to lodge a complaint with the police.

The plaintiff found that he had to walk home and so demanded the return of his fare. This was refused, whereupon he sued, and not only recovered the half-penny, but also expenses.

A lady traveling with a friend from Shrewsbury to London with third-class tickets was put by a porter, in a second class compartment. At Waterloo, extra fare was charged. She sued the South Western to recover the amount—about 75 cents—and after a smart legal battle had the satisfaction of recovering the money.

There are few more despot bodies than the Metropolitan Water Board, and it took courage on the part of a resident of Hoxton to sue the board for cutting off the water supply. Here, again the board put up a strong fight, their counsel declaring that as the house was unoccupied, they had a perfect right to cut off the supply at their own will and pleasure.

But the Old street magistrate thought differently, and the plaintiff costs.

Most of us have at least heard of Mr. Jacob Popp, the High Wycombe tobaccoist. So long ago as November, 1903, he received his 100th summons before the Borough Bench for the offense of opening his shop on the Lord's Day, contrary to the Act of Charles II.

He was summoned in all more than 400 times, and in seven years paid over $1000 in fines. At last, about two years ago, his long duel with the authorities ceased, and he was left in peace.

Perhaps the most extraordinary case on record of a small man winning a great legal battle was one that happened more than 60 years ago.

In those days an import duty was levied on all goods taken into Scotland, and the plaintiff, a border farmer, was taxed a penny for the straw litter which covered the bottom of his car, as he drove across the border into Scotland.

He at once brought action against the customs authorities, declaring that they had no right to tax material which was evidently not for sale. The case went to Edinburgh, and was argued for two days. In the end the farmer got his penny and nearly $1000 costs. Stray Stories.

RAISE RABBITS TO INCREASE THE MEAT SUPPLY

Production of Belgian Hares or Other Rabbits Easily Possible in City Back Yards as Well as on Farms, Says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Washington, D. C., July 10.—Rabbits which have proved a valuable source of food in Europe during the present war, may well be raised more extensively in America by way of reducing the drain on the ordinary meat supply, according to the biologists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The business of growing rabbits the specialists point out, can be carried on by youths and adults not engaged in military or other national service, or in regular industrial employment. The animals may be raised in back yards of cities and towns as well as on farms.

The Belgian hare, says a statement by the United States Department of Agriculture, breeds rapidly, matures quickly, and produces a palatable and highly nutritious meat. The cost of production is less than that of any other meat, not excepting poultry. The supply can be greatly increased within a few months without requiring the space that may be needed for the production of crops. Practical experience has demonstrated that rabbit meat can be produced in unlimited quantities at a cost of about 5 cents per pound; and by utilizing lawn cuttings and other vegetation that otherwise would be wasted, the cost can be made even lower.

The Belgian and Flemish giant rabbits are recommended for meat production, as the ordinary tame rabbit is smaller and develops more slowly. The stock of Belgian hares may be bought from breeders in nearly all of the states at $1 to $3 each. They may occasionally be had from pet stock dealers. Fancy pedigreed stock is not required for meat production.

"Rabbits are easily kept. They eat hay, grass, lawn cuttings and green vegetation of many kinds. Females should be allowed to breed when 8 or 10 months old, and during the year should raise four litters of about 6 young each. Well fed, the young reach remarkable size when three or four months old and average from 5 to 6 pounds, live weight.

The Department of Agriculture has published a bulletin on raising rabbits, which will be helpful to those who wish to engage in this pursuit.

GREEK ARMY TO BE INCREASED

Will Soon Be With Allies in From Three to Ten Divisions.

Rome, July 12.—The Greek army is to be increased from three to ten divisions, the recruiting and complete equipment of which are to be completed within four months, according to plans outlined yesterday by Charles C. A. Jannart, entente high commissioner in Greece. M. Jannart has reached Rome on his way to Paris where he will lay before the representatives of the entente powers the forthcoming conference the results of his work in Greece, which includes the abdication of King Constantine and important reforms which he expects to carry out under the new regime of Premier Venizelos.

In an interview with The Associated Press, M. Jannart gave an outline of the proposed constructive measures and the light which the United States would have in reconstruction of Greece on a strong basis.

He said: "Now the transition from the old regime is accomplished, we shall proceed at once to the important work of reconstruction. One of the first measures in connection will be complete reorganization of the Greek army so as to make it worthy of the country and a real factor in the situation. It is proposed to increase the present strength of the army, amounting to three divisions to ten. M. Venizelos and our military advisers are confident that this increase and the complete equipment of the army can be carried out so as to place a full force of men in the Greek divisions in the next four months.

"Concerning recruiting there can be no doubt. This will remain wholly with M. Venizelos and the Greeks in the matter of munitions, heavy artillery and other supplies and equipment. The co-operation of France and Great Britain will be requested. Our military advisers who accompany us have exact details in regard to just what this equipment must be in order to make the new Greek divisions thoroughly effective, and I am confident this branch of the reconstructive work will be carried out rapidly. The army is being reorganized on a most efficient basis.

"After being torn by internal dissension for the last two years, Greece finds her financial resources sadly depleted, and she needs and expects friendly co-operation and assistance of those great powers which wish to see the smaller nations placed on a firm and enduring foundation. Great Britain and France may be depended on for the army reorganization and in the same way we shall hope to have the powerful assistance of the United States in realizing effective reorganization of the civil branch. America's co-operation will be a most precious factor."

M. Jannart next outlined important constitutional and parliamentary reforms which it is proposed to carry out.

CALL OUT THE CORN MEAL RESERVE

Washington, D. C.,—In war time countries fall back upon their reserves. Corn is the food reserve of Americans—a tried and true line. Did it not enable the early colonists to win their wars with the Indians, the people who taught them not only how to grow this food but to eat it? And did not George Washington's armies fight our first war for democracy eating "flaxty puddin'," no-cake, sampan, and all their rest of those famous corn meal dishes. Why not give this veteran American food a chance in the great war for democracy?

It is time to call the corn reserve into the colors. That duty devolves upon American housewives. But the U. S. Department of Agriculture will help. The department, through its office of corn investigations, has taken steps calculated to restore meat, making on farms which are so situated that satisfactory quantities of corn meal at reasonable prices cannot be had. Where commercial mills are distant it is believed that home grinders, owned cooperatively if not individually, would furnish a fresh and wholesome food product and save transportation costs. Accordingly, the department's corn office has issued these instructions to its field men:

"You should consider the various ways in which farms and communities are situated as regards grinding mills and fresh supplies of corn meal. We should be able to give practical directions that would diminish transportation and the repurchasing of corn in the form of meal and other corn products at prices many times that of the corn from which they are made. Economic conditions will cause considerable substitution of corn for the wheat as food making this the opportunity time to demonstrate that by prompt and proper preparation of new corn, the substitution causes no sacrifice not even of palatableness."

Never can tell when you'll mash a finger, suffer a cut, bruise, burn or cold. Be prepared. Thousands rely on Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Your head the West Adm.

ARMY IN NEED OF BAKERS AND COOKS

Information has been received from the office of the Adjutant-General, Washington, D. C., to the effect that the quartermaster corps is urgently in need of 1700 bakers and 500 cooks. It is the desire of the department to put men in training immediately in order that they may be confident to look after the culinary department for the new army which will be called out about the first of September.

As far as possible it is desired to select bakers and cooks from men who have had experience along these lines in civil life. These men should be of good physique, strong and robust; however, certain physical defects can be waived. A man might be physically fit to perform the duties of a baker and yet have certain disqualifications, such as flat feet or things of a similar nature, which would incapacitate him for doing work in the line.

Men who enter this branch of the service are sure of receiving unusual promotion in the baker companies, and all men who have had any experience as bakers or cooks or who desire to learn these trades with the idea of making it their business, when they return to civil life, should avail themselves of this most excellent opportunity.

"The army maintains a number of schools where thorough instruction in the preparation of food is taught. This instruction is without expense to the individuals and is something which will mean dollars and cents to a man.

All men of military age who desire to avoid the draft, and at the same time be in a position to serve their country in one of the most important fields of activity should lose no time in taking advantage of this opening.

The requisite number of 2200 men for these positions will shortly be filled. Consequently immediate action should be taken by all men who desire to enter this branch of military service. Applicants should apply to the nearest army recruiting station.

GIVES VIVID DESCRIPTION OF TRENCH LIFE

Asst. Secretary Joseph W. Worthen of the State Committee on Public Safety has received a highly interesting series of letters from fellow colleagues at Oxford university who are with the British army in France. Mr. Worthen was prevailed upon to permit publication of a recent letter from J. B. F. Mann, a London barrister, which gives a vivid description of trench life. Mr. Mann's letter with the purely personal parts eliminated, was as follows:

My dear Joe:

I now find myself face to face with the imminent possibility of not being able to write at all, the cause being that in a few hours I am in for a "show" as it is called, and never knows, does one? As the comedians say, The other useful result of my dilatoriness is that being very busy, and the dug-out full, and the candle every now and then expiring with the thump of their high explosive landing overhead, the opportunity for writing a self-respecting letter is not very great, nor such as it is appropriate.

However, the main thing is to get some kind note scribbled. I am arranging that if I come through intact the letter will go forward in the ordinary way. If it doesn't so turn out, someone else will, I hope kindly inform you of the fact.

In return for the "New Republic" I am having the "New Europe" sent to you—to my mind, the best production of the war, and I think just enough to counterbalance what one might call the tendency of the New Republic to over-insistence upon—let us say—the Anglo-American view of what the whole dust-up is about. Nowhere else do you get the same idea of what these nationalities of Europe think and want, who have been at various stages and at various times, submerged in the appalling tidal waves of Germanic aggression. That is where I think the people would call it—rather, "high-brow" tone of the New Republic intellectuals tends to lead them off the track. No guaranteed peace or league of nations will ever secure anything until Prussia is in the military sense fought to a standstill and disrupted. You are under no illusion I imagine, as to what a bloody war this is, and no one can imagine that millions of men are daily going through "bloody hell" as we call it, for a difference which they only think exists, but does not. The gratifying and amusing part of the situation is that now we are giving the Boche a much "bloodier hell" than ever he dreamt of and with those very weapons upon which at the commencement of the war he very naturally hoped to have Europe prostrate before him. Of this fact I could convince you for all time were you here only for five minutes and had time just to pop upstairs for a moment or two.

The whole business has now reached such a stage that the intensity and ferocity of the destruction which go on relentlessly is quite unbelievable.

Of course the accession of the U. S. to the Allied cause is a factor of gigantic and timely moment, especially in the face of the Russian crisis. The most remarkable thing, I imagine, is the capacity of the presidential executive to come in at such a pace. It is known to people who know every plan that the speed and judgment of your fully what was preparations mean, and executive in doing the right thing in the right way and in taking the soundest advice available is more than remarkable. No chasing of popular and spectacular enterprises which are unsound and rigid determination to keep the hands of politicians and hucksters off the conduct of the war. Your papers will realize it better later on.

Well, there are urgent matters in hand for which I am personally responsible.

Yours ever,

J. B. F. Mann.

Captain George B. Ricker, the genial commander of the Isles of Shoals coast guard station, reached his 41st birthday on Saturday last. SCHOOL PLANTS FOR COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Portland, Oregon, July 11—American rural schools and the development of the nation for modern civilization, are interdependent, asserted Mrs. Mary C. Bradford, superintendent of instruction for the state of Colorado in an address before the School Patron's section of the National Education Association here today.

Pointing out that more than half the children of the country receive their instruction in the rural schools, the Colorado educator declared it was "easy to see the importance of giving the majority of the school population of our country such advantages as will enable them to transmit the best traditions of American life and thought to future generations."

Mrs. Bradford urged the county unit of school administration, or at least great numbers of consolidated schools, the utilization of school plants for community development, and standardization of school work.

"Amply educational facilities for all country children must be afforded by any school system claiming to do efficient work," she said. "The country child is entitled to instruction from professionally trained teachers and to the use of school houses and playgrounds arranged in such a way as to conserve health and comfort and to develop appreciation of beauty and the use of power."

"The community is entitled to the possession and use of such buildings for all purposes tending to enrich the community life and to lighten the bond of community unity."

"The rural school teacher is entitled to a salary commensurate with the cost of living and the present day demands in the line of scholarship, professional activity and community leadership. The teacher also is entitled to a home environment of comfort added to, at least, a modicum of beauty, thereby increasing the efficiency of the teacher."

"These things are to be obtained," Mrs. Bradford said, "by campaigns of education in every school district, and continued."

"A great vision, this—a rural school system based on a sane and beautiful relation between life activities and educational effort; rural districts transformed; urban populations purified, enriched—a nation reconsecrated to the service of all humanity."

There should be some means by which young men without the capital of their older competitors should have a chance of getting the credit which would enable them to establish new lines of business, and in that way help the development of the trade of the country."

GETTING CITIZENSHIP BACK

Americans in Foreign Armies, Perhaps 55,000 in all, Await Bills Now Pending in Congress

Many thousands of Americans who have been fighting with the French, British, Canadian and Italian armies against the Teutonic Allies are vitally interested in the question of their repatriation, now that the United States has entered the war says the National Geographic Society.

It is practically impossible to arrive at any definite knowledge as to the number of Americans who have lost their citizenship by joining the forces of the Allies, but it has been roughly estimated that fully 20,000 have enrolled under the standards of France, and perhaps 35,000 under the flags of England and Canada, with a considerably smaller number under the Italian banners.

There have been numerous cases in which persons born in Italy, but who have resided most of their lives in this country and have become American citizens have received a summons to join the allies of their motherland, with the alternative of being listed as deserters should they fail to return. The United States and Italy have never come to a treaty understanding on such questions as naturalization and extradition.

The method of procedure to be followed by those Americans desiring to be repatriated is extremely simple, according to the provisions of most of the bills thus far introduced in congress. One proposed measure provides that "any person, formerly an American citizen who has expatriated himself, by taking, since August 1, 1914, an oath of allegiance to any foreign state engaged in war with a country with which the United States is at war, and who took such oath in order to be enabled to enlist in the armed forces of such foreign state, and who actually enlisted in such armed forces, and who have been honorably discharged may require and resume the character and privileges of American citizenship if abroad, or presenting himself before a consular officer of the United States or if in the United States before any court authorized by law to confer American citizenship upon aliens offering satisfactory evidence that he comes within the terms of this act and taking an oath declaring his allegiance to the United States and abjuring and disclaiming allegiance to

ORGANIZED BOYS OF COUNTRY GET $18,661,000

When soldiers have been through a hard-fought battle they put the name of the glorious victory on their banners in letters of gold. The Boy Scouts of America are entitled to write "Liberty Loan Campaign" and the fund amount on their flags, for that is the aid that they gained for Uncle Sam in his hour of need.

Thousands of war problems have been won by individual scouts, these going mainly to those that sold ten or more Liberty bonds.

If any one asked you to raise $1,000,000 in four days solely through the efforts of boys between the ages of twelve and seventeen years, what would your answer be? Probably that "It can't be done." And if you were asked to make it $10,000,000 in the same time and by the same means, would you be able to make any answer at all? Yet more than eighteen million has been raised by boys under these same difficult conditions.

The Boy Scouts of America did it. Not that they are essentially different from other boys, but that they are young Americans working under a patriotic impulse and having the advantage of the training of a great organization that schools them in the real things of life and in their proper attitude toward all other human beings.

Taking into consideration all of the handicaps under which the scouts labored, including the fact that their campaign opened after the field had been thoroughly covered by adult soldiers in almost every town throughout the country, the achievements of the Boy Scouts is as Secretary McAdoo has well said, "wonderful record of which every member of the Boy Scouts' organization has reason to be proud."

The Boy Scouts collected applications for the Liberty Loan Bond in more than 2,000 cities and towns and from 149,897 different persons and for a sum that has now reached $18,661,000 and when all the returns are tabulated from far away points may go well over $25,000,000.

After all, the achievement was made possible because of two factors: first, organization, and second, the spirit of Scouting. Because of organization it was possible to put into motion for the first time in the history of the country a national effort for undertaking to utilize the services of boys.

One of the significant results of the scouts' participation in the Liberty Loan campaign has been the awakening on the part of the men of affairs to the potential power of boys through organized effort. Scores and scores of letters of commendation have been received, including the letter of high appreciation from our President and the leading bankers and municipal authorities the whole world over, favorably they frankly admit their surprise that the scouts were able to accomplish such substantial results and commend the men whose leadership has made the results possible through organized effort of boys in such a practical manner.

The Boy Scouts of America is the most mobile organization in the world. Push a button at national headquarters, and results appear from the sparsely settled plains of Arizona, the crowded East Side of New York, the residential sections of Newport and from the business districts of Chicago and San Francisco.

It was a task that has not been attempted before, and the successful result of this work of piling up millions for Uncle Sam's Treasury must have to some extent been prophesied in the minds of President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo when they requested the Boy Scouts to carry the government's appeal for war money directly into the homes of America. President Wilson had said: "This will give every Scout a wonderful opportunity to do his share for his country under the slogan 'Every Scout to Save a Soldier.' I feel sure that this request will find a unanimous and enthusiastic response from Boy Scouts everywhere." It did. Each Boy Scout saved his soldier and a little more, for there are 251,182 Boy Scouts, and the applications are for nearly a $100 bond for each boy.

There are 251,182 registered scouts, and with the scoutmasters and commissioners and others serving on troop councils, etc., there is an organized body of 320,411 people in the Boy Scouts of America.

Although Boy Scout Headquarters did not outline a national program for co-operation with the Red Cross, reports are coming in from all over the country to the effect that Boy Scouts gave ready and valuable assistance in the raising of the "One hundred million." Complete data are not at hand, so it cannot be said even approximately what amount the Red Cross received through the aid of Boy Scouts. But it is known that it must have been considerable because of the very general assistance given. Scoutmasters and the Scouts themselves are to be commended for their spirit in giving their services to the Red Cross, particularly as the big Liberty Bond drive had only just ended, in which the Scouts served so conspicuously.

The American Red Cross is an institution that deserves the keen interest and material support of all our people, and it is quite in order for Boy Scouts at every opportunity to lend their aid to the least chapters. This is honorable service to the nation itself in the time of war. It is honorable service for humanity. It is true Boy Scout activity.

AUTOMOBILE CRASHES THROUGH MILL BRIDGE

charitable circles and civic affairs of her town and was one of the most highly respected of women. Friends of the family stated after the report of her death that no person in the community would be so greatly missed as Miss Crowe. She was about fifty years old and lived with her father.

Mr. Crowe is survived by a son who manages the farm and one daughter, a Sister of Mercy at Manchester, who they had intended to visit today.

Fr. Creedon Was Formerly Here.

Patther Creedon, owner and driver of the car, which went through the bridge, was formerly assistant rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception in this city during the rectorship of the Rev. Eugene M. O'Callaghan. At present he is rector of the church at Laconia.

Miss Crowe Changed Cars.

On Wednesday morning the Rev. P. J. Scott of Hampton Beach and the party who were his guests for the day left the beach for an auto trip to Ogunquit, Me., in two cars. The first car was driven by Father Creedon and carried his two sisters and Miss Crowe. In the second car with Father Creedon were his sister, Mr. Crowe, a Miss Mary Hurley of Manchester, and the Rev. Michael Griffin, assistant pastor of the church at Exeter.

Arriving at Ogunquit the day was passed and on the return Miss Crowe and the sister of Father Creedon changed places, Miss Crowe returning in the car with Father Creedon and her father.

On leaving Ogunquit Father Scott's car went first with Father Creedon and his party following. As they approached the Mill Bridge in North Kittery, remembering the condition of the bridge from passing over it in the morning, Father Creedon ran slowly but as he struck the bridge it is supposed that the left forward wheel hit the corner of the new double plank, which is two and a half inches higher than the road, and swerved the car to the right, probably twisting the wheel from his grasp. The car plunged through the guard rail at the right of the bridge, turned around and toppled over on its side, laying in the water pointed in the opposite direction.

After his rescue Father Creedon said that he supposed he and the two others saved were thrown clear of the car when it fell but that Mr. Crowe and his daughter, who were on the rear seat, were pinned in by the top which was up. He found himself at the surface of the water and a moment later saw Father Griffin and Miss Hurley rise to the surface. Father Griffin was unconscious, swimming to their rescue he supported them until the arrival of Harry Green, a farm hand employed by Leonard Caswell, a nearby farmer, who threw planks and the part of the splintered rail into the water for their further support, and then assisted them to the shore.

Word was sent to this city for help and Assistant Chief Ducker and several officers from the city were rushed to the scene in the police ambulance. In the mean time Mr. Caswell and Willard Chick of North Kittery had arrived and together succeeded in extricating the bodies of Mr. Crowe and his daughter from the overturned machine, and brought them to the shore.

Father Scott and his party had continued on their way after passing the bridge for a distance of three-quarters of a mile before learning that the other car was not following. On returning to the bridge they became aware of the accident.

A passing automobile driven by a Massachusetts clergyman brought Miss Hurley and Father Griffin to the Portsmouth hospital where they were placed in charge of physicians. Miss Hurley remained at the hospital overnight suffering from the shock but later in the evening Father Griffin returned to the scene of the accident.

Deputy Sheriff James K. Boardman of Kittery was early on the scene and took charge of the situation. He detained Father Creedon and later sent him to the Judge of the Municipal Court Justin Henry Shaw, who allowed him to leave on his own recognizance accepting his word to appear for a hearing if one was thought necessary by the Coroner. Father Creedon came to this city after being provided with dry clothing by Judge Shaw.

The remains of Mr. Crowe and his daughter were brought to Kittery Grange Hall under the direction of Funeral Director William P. Miskell and an inquest will be held this morning by Coroner B. D. Jacques of South Berwick.

All of Party Suffered From Shock.

On their return to the bridge the members of the party in Father Scott's car were nearly overcome by the shock of the accident and were unable to proceed alone to the beach. Patrolman Smart of the local police department, drove the machine to Hampton Beach where the party remained at the residence of Father Scott.

Motorists Complain of Bridge.

Guards were placed at the bridge for the night for the protection of other motorists after the accident, as the bridge is now considered in a dangerous condition. In interviews last evening several car owners who have passed over the bridge in the past few days stated that the bridge was not safe. The bridge is being repaired with double planking the left side as one comes towards this city having been completed, making this side nearly two inches higher than the right, and more than that higher than the road way. It is not thought that Father Creedon will be held responsible for the accident because of the dangerous condition of the road and bridge.

The accident occurred at 5:20 o'clock as the watches carried by Father Creedon and Miss Hurley both stopped at that time. It happened at about high water and the water was at a depth of about seven feet with a drop from the bridge of about three feet to the surface of the water.

WOULD PUT A STOP TO FREE ADS

Editors Assert Space Should Be Paid For

Minneapolis, Minn., July 11.—Opposition to free advertising and publicity by newspapers was voiced by speakers at the afternoon session of the National Editorial Association convention here. S. G. Goldthwaite of Boone, Iowa, president of the Ohio Press association, recommended the appointment of a field secretary of the organization to conduct a campaign against free advertising.

"Despite the great progress of the last 25 years too many newspapers still run a column of free reading matter to obtain a space advertisement," he declared.

He said further that editors should contribute freely of their space to the government during the war, but predicted that a new arrangement would be entered into after the war.

The government has commandeered advertising space in newspapers for many years. Payment should be made for this space," he said.

H. A. Huse of New York, vice president of the American Press Association, took a similar stand.

"If the government commands newspaper space, it should pay for it," he said. "If editors wish to give to a cause, they should give cash."

Necessity for organization, economy and co-operation among newspaper publishers was emphasized tonight in the report of the executive committee of the association which was presented by G. E. Hosmer of Denver, chairman of the committee. His report dealt with the efforts of publishers to obtain print paper at reasonable prices and also touched on economies which should be practised by publishers.

"Investigation by the federal trade commission and by our committee has clearly shown that there has been only a slight increase in the cost of manufacturing print paper since 1915," said Mr. Hosmer. "And you all know the increase has been from 50 per cent to 200 per cent in the selling price. I am firmly of the opinion but for the work that has been done by our organization and by the affiliated state and district organizations, we would now be paying at least an average of one cent a pound more for paper than we are paying."

"It seems to me that what should be done is to give the federal trade commission specific power to fix prices and take charge of distribution of print paper. If that is not sufficient, give the trade commission power to take over the mills and operate them during the war period. We are now in a critical condition in this country, and the pirates who have been holding us up on print paper as well as those who have been holding the people up on food should be prosecuted and their privileges curtailed."

The report said that the censorship question has been settled "fairly satisfactorily" and that newspapers should be careful not to misuse their privileges.

BUGS IN THE GARDEN

The patriotic emergency gardener is, learning, these days, some practical facts about bugs. His general idea, too, of the extent of the insect population is undergoing revision. Insects, he finds, are more numerous than he realized. Heretofore, he has seen amusement in the comic artist's picture of the farmer struggling valiantly with a gigantic potato bug—that was the sort of thing to move him to laughter. It does not move him to laughter now. He has learned a few material facts about bugs and he has come in the light of his newly acquired knowledge, to view bugs seriously. He still wonders of course, whence come the bugs. Last year, he recalls he did not garden himself; neither did his neighbor. Observation, backed by statistics, informs him that there are approximately ten gardens this year to one last year. How, he asks himself, could last season's population of insect enemies accommodate itself so suddenly to this tremendous increase in pasturage? A multiplication of gardens, he argues, ought to mean fewer bugs to a garden plant. But examination of the plants in his own garden convinces him that the additional pasturage has in no wise affected the density of population.

Well may he marvel. The ways of the insect enemies of plant life are dark and mysterious. Tonight's sun may stink upon a garden innocent of bug life while tomorrow's dawn may break upon the same garden to find it teeming with countless millions of insect enemies. Ruthless warfare slaughters them one day only to bring a new host on the succeeding day. Even eternal vigilance seems to be an inadequate defense against the invasion.

Discouraged amateurs, however, should abandon neither hope nor the squirt gun. Vegetables consumed by them in the past, when they were not themselves gardeners, are evidence that the bug host can be conquered. Spraying is the means to the end. Spray early and late and often. There is a remedy for every bug enemy. The main thing is to apply the remedy. July will see an increase rather than a diminution in the ranks of the bug army, but industrious operation of the sprayer will keep the horde in check. Relentless warfare with no quarter and no compromise, will do the work.—Minneapolis News.

SUBMARINE SUCCESSES AGAIN LESS

(By Associated Press)

London, July 11.—The losses of British merchant shipping through the German submarine war were the lowest during the past week in the four months in which the admiralty has been making the public announcements of losses. During the week, according to the admiralty statement issued tonight, for the present week were fourteen vessels over 1,000 tons as compared with fifteen of the previous week, and for ships of less than 1,000 tons three, two less than those of last week, a total decrease of three ships.

GIANTS AND "RUNTS" MAY JOIN ARMY

Washington, July 11.—By radical changes in the height requirements for the draft army, the war department has made thousands of additional men liable to military service.

Following recommendations made by the surgeon-general's office, the war department clipped off three inches from the old minimum height requirement—5 feet 4 inches—and added six inches to the maximum—formerly 6 feet.

This action will bring thousands of "bantams" into the army, otherwise subject to exemption on account of height—also many giants.

These changes are practically the only instances of lowering the right requirements.

At noon today 20 states wired Provost Marshal-General Crowder that every local board was organized and ready for the draft.

The great draft lottery today is waiting upon the organization of a few hundred local exemption boards. Within 24 hours after the last board is ready the draft will occur.

One lagging board will hold up the whole machine. This point has been called to the attention of every board, with a plea for haste.

More than 3000 boards are ready with their registration lists serially numbered and on file in the provost marshal general's office. When the last president flashes the word to Washington that it is ready, Secretary Baker will announce the method of the draft lottery and the date.

Although the plan is known in a general way, the final draft of the scheme for drawing the first levy of 487,000 men is again before President Wilson for approval. Minor changes were made at the last moment.

The census bureau today completed new population estimates for use of the war department in apportioning the burden that each state, city and county must bear in furnishing men for the draft armies.

The new estimates show a population of the United States proper of 100,619,681.

Upon the basis of the registration figures the bureau finds that the men between 21 and 34 are 9.32 per cent of the total population.

HOLLAND FIRST TO PROTEST THE EMBARGO ORDER

Washington, July 11.—Declaring Holland is starving, Chevalier van Rappard, Dutch minister in Washington, today beset the grave apprehension of neutral nations at America's embargo.

Representatives of other countries, chiefly affected by President Wilson's proclamation shutting off food feeds, fuels and necessities, declared their "actual existence is threatened."

"We are starving," Van Rappard said today. "Our people are on rations. We will suffer most of war's terrible evils without being a belligerent. We are forced to depend on Germany for coal and on America for grain. Holland is at the mercy of your country."

It was the first outcry against the drastic action forced upon President Wilson by the war. Other neutrals are equally apprehensive. Each nation has its own case, which it is placing before the great world struggle—forced there by the pressure of threatened starvation.

German troubles promise soon to hang two new millstones about Germany's neck.

The embargo, curtailing supplies to neutrals, lest they be re-exported to Germany, will be effective July 15. Therefore no vital foodstuffs, munitions, fertilizers or metals can be sent abroad without licenses from the department of commerce.

Certain congressmen strongly favor having the President so screw down these limitations that the neutrals will have to align themselves with the United States unless they wish to starve.

Meantime, according to press reports Germany is confronted with troubles from within—a demand for parliamentary reform and a general political situation wherein new peace terms are apparently forthcoming.

Explains Plan.
The pressure from without and within seems likely to be such as to give the German authorities some difficult months ahead.

Neutrals will suffer more unless they divert their tied-up shipping to allies' uses and likewise permit an allied patrol of the Scandinavian coasts to bag submarines, now using territorial waters as a safe outlet to the sea.

In issuing regulations on the embargo President Wilson pointed out that the United States wants to meet neutral needs, but he has emphatically showed the prime need of feeding the United States and its allies first and of shutting off any re-export of supplies to Germany through neutral nations.

The Scandinavian countries, Holland and Switzerland, will be hard hit by the embargo.

The nature of the proclamation has strengthened belief here that the government will shut off all exports with an embargo for 60 days until an invoice of this country's supplies may be taken.

Commercial envoys from European neutrals and representatives of South American countries were active today in an effort to remove some of the teeth from the threatened embargo.

Eventually, which might follow this government's drastic action have been only considered. It is realized that if the war endures long, new faces may appear on one side or the other of the great world struggle—forced there by the pressure of threatened starvation.

Urges Strong Measures.
But military men insist that no chances must be taken with supplies of this nation and her allies, regardless of what neutrals think.

FOOD FROM COLONIES

Paris, July 11.—(Correspondence)—French colonies and protectorates are going to furnish France a big part of the food and raw materials she has been getting from foreign countries, in the opinion of Albert Lebrun, deputy form the Department of Meurthe and Moselle and former Minister of Colonies. France will also, he thinks, furnish a larger part of the things her colonies buy.

"France pays foreign countries about 300,000,000 francs a year for oil-producing products," he said to a representative of The Associated Press, "while she has in Senegal, on the Ivory Coast, in Dahomey, Gabon and Indo-China immense resources in these products that are undeveloped. Palm trees and coconut trees grow there naturally, while the soil is well adapted to the production of peanuts which produce a comestible oil greatly appreciated not only in France but in Germany. The Germans took 70,000 tons of peanuts from our colony in Senegal during the first half of 1914. The bean that produces castor oil, so essential to our aviation, also thrives in our colonies."

"Of 110,000 tons of coffee consumed in France each year only about 3,000 come from our colonies, yet our Congo furnishes plants to renew the plantations of the Dutch Indies. The same situation prevails in different degrees with regard to cocoa, rubber and cereals."

"Of 42,000,000 francs worth of tobacco imported by France annually, Algeria furnished 1,400,000. The rest comes from foreign markets, but we have splendid tobacco land in West Africa alongside that on which the Germans had already developed plantations in the Kamerun that gave good crops of excellent quality."

"France is short of paper; she has always been dependent upon Sweden for pulp, yet the high plateaus of Algeria abound with fiber-producing alfalfa and the hillsides of Senegal and Cote d'Ivoire are rich with bamboo and papayas that ought long ago to have been utilized by our paper makers, which what we require, but could export. Pulp mills there could not only furnish large quantities to foreign countries, thus helping our exchange."

"France imports 305,000 tons of cotton per year, four-fifths from the United States and the rest, excepting a few hundred tons, from Egypt and India. In the same latitude, we have immense spaces in our colonies where cotton grows unaided in its wild state; it needs only a little help to develop into an important production."

"The Jute and Flax of Tonkin and West Africa are used in primitive ways by the natives to make nets, baggage and hats. Systematic improvement in the cultivation of these regions would bring an important resource to France."

"There is nothing our colonies produce that we cannot utilize to the best advantage, yet France did only 40 per cent of the trade of our colonies, excluding Algeria, Tunis, and Morocco, in 1913; 2 1-2 per cent of their trade was between themselves, the rest about 57 per cent, was with foreign countries. Germany and Austria were rapidly increasing their share of it before the war. Their trade was 30,000,000 francs in 1907. It had grown to 70,000,000 francs a year in 1912. Germany's trade was the largest of all; in some of our colonies, Dahomey, for instance, coming even before that with France."

"France has the second colonial dominion of the world, comprising in 1914, 6,600,000 square miles, inhabited by more than 50,000,000 persons."

"Their general trade had reached 3,000,000,000 francs a year, or about one-fifth of that of the mother country. In 1913, during the war they have been a great aid to the home country in the furnishing of oils, cereals, wool, rice, livestock. Their role for the future will be to replace to a great extent other foreign markets on which France depended before."

ANGELS OF VICTORY

(By Amelia Josephine Burr of the Vigilantes.)

Over the curtain of fire,
Over the ditches of death,
Over the blood-mixed mire,
Over the corpse-littered wire,
Drawing untainted breath—
They swoop on their wings of steel
Out of the sky they deal
The blow that smites to heel,
Fighting that wars may cease,
Clearing the path of Peace,
Knights of the Soul's Desire.

More, more, more

Let their thousands fill the sky
Can you not hear the cry
Of those who have gone before
And counted it gain to die
That the world might be clean of a lie?

"More—More—More—"
For the shattered and tortured earth,
For the red-streaked, red-strewn sea,
There shall come a glad new birth—
Their sister shall set them free
From the pain she stoops to share,
Send, O Sons of the Air,
An end to the world's despair—
Angels of Victory.

COMFORT PILLOWS.

For some weeks I have kept a hat box in my sewing room into which I put any slips or cuttings, says a writer in an exchange. Nothing is too small or too irregular in size to use. Also any clean rags of any material or color and their way there, too. On rainy days I find the children are amused for an hour at a time cutting the pieces into little snips. Then I let them all pretty colored pillows about 11 inches square with these pieces. These are called by the Red Cross "comfort pillows" and are in great demand at the present time for use in the ambulances at the front. Such pillows would do for camping also.

PRESIDENT APPEALS TO BUSINESS MEN

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 11.—President Wilson appeals to business men in the country to display the same patriotism and love of country as is being shown on the fields of France and as is expected by the American boys who will soon be fighting on these fields.

The President demanded of the co-operators and other business men to serve the public at fair prices and assured them that fair prices would be paid by the government and the public for all goods obtained. He declared that one price should be demanded by the dealers of necessities to government and public.

The President expressed his perfect confidence in the patriotism of the majority of business men who would work out the problem of war business satisfactorily, but he declared that those attempting to make excessive profits out of the war business would be prosecuted.

He delivered a scathing arraignment against the shipping interests who had boosted the war freight rates.

AMERICAN SHIP TORPEDOED BY GERMAN U-BOAT

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 11.—The State Department was informed this afternoon that the American steamer Kamsan was torpedoed by a German submarine with the loss of four of her crew. The American gun crew were all rescued.

THE DANGERS BILIOUSNESS

This trouble often seems a simple one but you know how utterly useless it makes you feel—

Well, your system is just as weak as you feel and will readily succumb to colds or any serious diseases with which you come in contact.

Why not protect yourself against these deadly risks and be 100 per cent efficient all the time. C. E. Brewster & Co., of Dover, the successful druggists, are enthusiastic over their success with that old and tried remedy, Abbey's Effervescent Salts. It is so pleasant to take and so infallible in its results that it is rapidly adding not only to his patronage but to his reputation as a discriminating druggist who knows it to be good business to offer only the best to his patrons.

Try the new package of Abbey's, larger than ever at the same price, and see how it will brighten and strengthen you.

RUBBER RINGS SHOULD BE OF GOOD QUALITY

The question of reliable rubber rings for use in canning is giving a good deal of concern to the state food committee and to the canning demonstrators now at work throughout the state on behalf of the committee. In a large number of cases the demonstrators are finding that the rubber rings that housewives have on hand are not suitable for successful canning. Rubber rings of poor quality and those that have been held over from previous years will not seal jars perfectly. The use of such rings is almost certain to result in spoiled vegetables and fruit.

A ring is easily tested. If it is a good one it can be stretched out to practically double its length without breaking and will return to practically its original size and shape. Rings that will not do this are too poor to use and are almost sure to result in loss. The demonstrators are finding that many rings have no life in them and will break when subjected to the above test. In all cases, housewives are urged to test all rings they are in use. This should be done whether the rings are new or old. In fact, rings that are held over for even one year are nearly always certain to have deteriorated to such an extent that they will not stand the test. Some new rings, especially those sold at so-called bargain prices, are equally defective.

POULTRY SHOULD BE CHEAP

A Surplus of Nutritious Food is Available if Retailers Will Take Small Profits.

Washington, July 12.—A present congestion in the frozen poultry market, shown by figures of the United States Department of Agriculture, can be relieved if the retail dealers will handle the goods at a reasonable advance over wholesale prices. This action would make poultry available at prices comparing favorably with other meats according to the findings of a conference just held here between wholesale poultry distributors and officials of the Department of Agriculture. Both parties to the conference say that more poultry should be eaten when the facts are understood by the consumer; and an increased use of poultry now, in the opinion of the department, will tend to conserve other meats which are of more importance to Americans and their allies in Europe. The retailers, as well as wholesalers, it is pointed out, should aid in relieving the congestion.

Broiling chickens are especially abundant and those of prime quality sold in June on the wholesale market in New York at an average price of 22 cents a pound. A year before the average price was 27 cents during the same month. There are unusually heavy holdings of dressed poultry in cold storage. Unless these stocks are moved quickly, farmers who have increased this year's flocks in response to a patriotic appeal will not have normal marketing conditions when their surplus comes on the market.

The parties to the conference agreed that the storage supplies of poultry in the summer of 1916 were unusually low because of small original holdings and large export demands. This resulted in unusually high prices to producers during the fall and winter of 1916. The supply was unexpectedly heavy and large stocks were stored at high costs. Then export demands fell off, the wave of economy affected the home demand, and the storage stocks moved slowly. The net result, according to the department, is that almost everybody ought to enjoy chicken dinners now at decidedly reduced prices, and without a feeling that they are using up needed meat supplies. In short, it is said to depend on the retailers whether cheaper chickens will be available.

WANT LAND AT ELIOT DIVIDED

Hearing on the Bartlett Estate on Wednesday.

A hearing was held on Wednesday afternoon at Biddeford in the estate of the late Sylvester Bartlett of Eliot. A petition for partition was presented by Ralph S. ## INVESTIGATION HELD BY MEDICAL EXAMINER

Medical Examiner E. D. Jacques of South Berwick conducted an investigation on Thursday morning to determine the manner in which Mr. John Crowe and his daughter, Mary, of East Jaffrey, N. H., met their death in the automobile accident at North Kittery. The investigation was scheduled for 9 o'clock at Grange hall, Kittery, but it was nearly 10:30 o'clock when Dr. Jacques, accompanied by Sheriff Boardman, Attorney Aaron B. Cole and Selectman James H. Walker made their appearance at the place designated. The two remaining members of the board of selectmen, Charles F. Hussey and Harry H. Cook, were in waiting at the hall.

The party immediately entered the building where an examination of the bodies of Mr. Crowe and his daughter were made to determine whether death was caused by the accident or by drowning.

The finding will be reported to County Attorney Franklin R. Chesley of Saco, Me. Rev. Fr. Joseph J. Green, in whose car Mr. Crowe and his daughter were riding at the time of the accident, was present and after the examination of the bodies was concluded gave his story of the accident to the Medical Examiner and the board of Selectmen.

Deputy Sheriff James K. Boardman who was standing on the sidewalk shouted to the conductor to stop the car and assisted Mr. Downing from his perilous position. Outside of a shaking up by the fall the aged man suffered no injuries.

CANNING DEMONSTRATION WAS A SUCCESS

The demonstration in canning held at the High school on Wednesday afternoon was a decided success. An audience of 33 crowded the domestic science room to learn from Miss Cate how best to play their part in conserving food by canning. Kettles were boiling merrily on several of the gas stoves and the audience watched with interest the preparation of peas and beets by blanching and cold plunge before they were put into the sterilized jars and consigned to the hot water bath or the steam pressure canner for prolonged cooking. Strawberry jam was made by two methods. The canning centre is doing a flourishing business, having already turned out about two hundred jars of fruit and vegetables. Miss Cate and her assistants are also frequently called on to act as a bureau of information giving advice as it is asked over the telephone or to those who come in to observe. Office hours are from 8 to 12 and 1 to 4 on five days in the week and from 8 to 12 on Saturdays. Those wishing to have canning done should telephone a day in advance if possible.

All wishing to observe are welcome at any time.

Weekly demonstrations will be held through July and August in the High school on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. The articles to be canned will be announced in the paper in advance.
